EXECUTIVE ORDER
PROCLAMATION
CALL FOR THE SECOND EXTRAORDINARY SESSION
OF THE SIXTY-THIRD GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Pursuant to the authority vested in the Office of the Governor of the State of Colorado, and in particular vested in the Governor pursuant to Article IV, Section 9 of the Colorado Constitution, and as provided for in Article V, Section 7, I, Bill Owens, Governor of the State of Colorado, hereby issue this Executive Order convening the Sixty-Third General Assembly to meet in extraordinary session.

1. Background and Need

The results of the 2000 United States Census increase Colorado's representation to the United States House of Representatives to seven seats from six. The Colorado Constitution requires the General Assembly to divide the state into seven congressional districts to reflect Colorado's new and higher population figures. New congressional districts need to be drawn in time for the 2002 election cycle and must embody the principle of one person, one vote from Article 1, Section 2 of the United States Constitution. The General Assembly should draw these districts to fairly reflect Colorado's growth, diversity, existing political subdivisions and communities of interest.

The unprecedented population growth that occurred in Colorado and was documented by the Census has dramatically impacted land use across the state. Colorado citizens have consistently stated that the rapid population growth threatens our unique quality of life. Colorado's voters and its legislature have struggled for several years with the question of how to manage the benefits associated with the population increase and how to mitigate certain negative impacts of the development that have resulted.

Unfortunately, despite attempts in three successive legislative sessions, a citizen's initiative, and a previous special session this year to address this difficult issue, Colorado still has not updated its land use laws to better manage growth. If the State of Colorado fails to act now to reform land use laws we risk losing a lifestyle found in no other place in the country.

The increased population in Colorado is clearly evidenced by the strain on the state's transportation system. For too long Colorado's transportation funding failed to keep pace with its population growth. Since 1998, we have more than doubled state spending on transportation and accelerated projects through programs like the transportation bonding referendum approved by the voters in 1999. Yet despite these measures, Colorado's state transportation system still suffers from twenty-five years of balancing the state budget on the back of transportation funding. The state must immediately reprioritize its budget to increase transportation funding.

Finally, two important issues call for immediate action during this extraordinary legislative session. First, due to drafting mistakes in Senate Bill 01-168 that were beyond the scope of the bill's title, certain drunk driving offenders may receive lesser sentences than are appropriate. The General Assembly, therefore, should rectify this oversight to ensure the safety of Colorado's roads and highways.

Second, many low-income women in Colorado and the nation are unable to afford the necessary treatment recommended as a result of free breast and cervical cancer screenings. In response, Congress late last year passed the Breast and Cervical Cancer Act of 2000. This authorizes states to adopt legislation providing Medicaid coverage to women who have been screened by a National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program health care provider and found to have cancer or precancerous lesions. The Act offers a significant federal match for states that pass enabling legislation to offer Medicaid eligibility to women with breast and cervical cancer.

Earlier this year, the Colorado General Assembly failed to enact enabling legislation because it could not find a funding source for Colorado's portion. However, there are unspent funds from Colorado's share of the national tobacco settlement. As there is a direct connection between tobacco use and breast and cervical cancer, it makes sense to fund treatment for these diseases from unspent settlement dollars. Further delays offering treatment will increase eventual treatment costs and may result in needless deaths, thus the state should provide funding for this program now.

Because there has been no resolution concerning how to address these important issues for Colorado, an extraordinary occasion has arisen that necessitates that I convene a special session of the General Assembly to answer the needs of the people of Colorado.

2. Proclamation

I, Bill Owens, Governor of the State of Colorado, with this proclamation convene the Sixty-Third General Assembly of this state and summon the members of the Sixty-Third General Assembly to meet in Special Session at the State Capitol, in the City and County of Denver, on September 20, 2001, at 10:00 a.m. and designate the following subjects for your consideration and appropriate legislative action:

F. Concerning allowing property owners adjacent to a proposed annexation in which the contiguity requirements in C.R.S. 31-12-104(1)(a) are achieved by annexing a platted street or alley, a public or private right of way, a public or private transportation right of way or area, or a lake, reservoir, stream or other natural or artificial waterway, the opportunity to be included in the proposed annexation.

G. Concerning the creation of a regional planning agreement between the municipalities and counties that are members of the metropolitan planning organization (MPO) for the Denver metropolitan area that upholds local decision-making authority.

H. Concerning establishing uniform authority among all home rule and statutory municipalities and counties for land development charges that have a direct nexus and are proportionate to the costs of public infrastructure and capital facilities provided by municipalities and counties.

L. Concerning an annual transfer in future years from the General Fund excess reserve to the capital construction fund for highway funding.

N. Concerning implementing the Breast and Cervical Cancer Act of 2000 with funding from monies allocated to the Tobacco program fund created in C.R.S. 25-3.5-807.

GIVEN under my hand and the Executive Seal of the State of Colorado this 10th day of September, 2001.

INTRODUCTION AND CONSIDERATION OF RESOLUTIONS

HJR01S2-1001 by Representatitives Spradley, Dean and Grossman; also Senators Thiebaut, Matsunaka and Andrews--Concerning a Joint Session of the House of Representatives and Senate for the purpose of hearing a message from His Excellency, Governor Bill Owens, and appointing a committee to escort the Governor.

A two-thirds majority of those elected to the Senate having voted in the affirmative, Senate Rule 30(e) was suspended and immediate consideration granted.

On motion of Senator Thiebaut, the Resolution was adopted by the following roll call vote:

YES	31	NO	0	EXCUSED	4	ABSENT	0

Epps	Y	Linkhart	Y	Reeves	Y

Pursuant to the resolution, the President appointed Senators Tate and Entz to serve on the committee.

Senators Hagedorn Chairman, Linkhart and Epps announced that the House had been informed that the Senate was organized and ready for business.

On motion of Senator Thiebaut and with the unanimous consent of those elected to the Senate, the Senate stood in recess to hear the opening day remarks of President Matsunaka and Minority Leader Andrews. The text of their remarks are as follows.

Senator Matsunaka's remarks:

Fellow Senators, and guests, it is with heavy hearts, we come to the Senate today with a broad agenda in front of us, yet understanding that there is a national crisis that overshadows our every moment. All of the eyes of Colorado are watching the work that we begin today. My grandmother used to tell me, with leadership comes responsibility. As leaders in this state let's show everyone we care more than others think is wise, dream more than others think is practical and expect more than others think is possible.

We have 15 days to accomplish many tasks and I am confident that we will do our best to set aside the partisan issues and make short work of the governor's agenda: redistricting, growth, transportation, and funding for breast and cervical cancer treatment. It's an ambitious agenda that requires providing for both the rich and poor, rural and urban, west slope and front range residents of Colorado. I know that we are up to the challenge.

The people of this state who sent us here represent the diversity that IS our state. There are many people who are praying for us and our country. Let us remember that those prayers come in many languages, from many cultures, from Christians, Buddhists, Muslims and Jews alike. Let us as leaders in this state pledge that we will give substance to everything we do in the next few days.

Robert Kennedy said, "The future does not belong to those who are content with today, apathetic toward common problems, timid and fearful in the face of new ideas and bold projects. Rather it belongs to those who can blend vision, reason and courage in a personal commitment to the ideals and great enterprises of American Society."

No one of us individually can change history, but each one of us can work to make a small change and when they are all added up together, we can write history for Colorado. Every time we stand up for an ideal, act to improve the life of another, speak out against an injustice, we create a tiny ripple of hope. With each tiny ripple of hope rather than despair, the ripples build into a giant burst of energy that allows us to do the impossible.

So let's set a new standard for this senate by paraphrasing George Bernard Shaw, "past senators saw things as they were and asked why, but our senators saw things that never were and said why not." Let's not sit back and just ask why, but let's dream and then expect the impossible.

I also believe that we should not downplay our differences. Over the last few days we have seen the consequences of people who loathe disagreement with their views. There may be moments when we reach an impasse. We should not shrink from agreeing to disagree on issues...it's the very bedrock upon which our democracy was built.

We are a select group of 35 individuals in this state. I am proud to serve with all of you as you understand what duty, honor and sacrifice mean. Together we can tackle the tough problems. During our darkest hours when our backs are against the wall, this is when I am most proud to be an American. The last 4 letters in the word American say it all for us, "I can." We can and we will.

Someone once told me, "when you combine boldness with imagination, you create magic." Let's not be timid anymore, let's not be content with today. Together we can lead this new era with vision, courage and commitment and make this state better than when it was passed to us. Together, we can carry the torch of leadership with boldness and imagination and create magic for the next generation. The Colorado Senate is ready to go to work. Let's roll up our sleeves and do the best we possibly can.

Thank you.

Senator Andrew's remarks:

Good morning, friends. Here we go again. 2001 seems to be the legislative year that never ends. Like the movie "Groundhog Day," we're going to keep trying until we get it right.

At a time of sorrow and crisis for the nation, our work in the special session takes on a different perspective than it had before Sept. 11. As we go about our duties here at the Capitol day by day, many of us would probably rather be helping out in New York at the scene of the tragedy, or somehow lending a hand to the war effort in distant countries.

Our hearts are with those who have suffered. Our spirit wishes Godspeed to those who are beginning to rebuild, and those preparing to strike back.

But we as senators can do our part by demonstrating that the free and orderly process of American self-government continues unharmed and unafraid. The best way to honor the flag is to sustain the republic for which it stands, and that is what we are here to do.

We are here to draw seven new Congressional districts for Colorado's voice in Washington over the next ten years. Those districts should place public communities of interest ahead of partisan self-interest. They should be drawn by the people's elected representatives, not imposed by court order. Judges already make too many decisions. This decision is our responsibility. Let's not fail.

We are here to try again on the issue of growth. Our constituents are tired of excuses about this. They want results. Governor Owens has offered a good set of tools to help local governments manage growth more effectively. In the last special session, after the House passed his proposals with bipartisan majorities, the Senate embarrassed itself with partisanship. This time, Mr. President, we must do better. Grand solutions are now inappropriate anyway. The agenda may soon shift from controlling growth to creating jobs.

And we also are here to take the next step on providing a 21st century transportation system for Colorado. After decades of defunding roads and highways, we began turning things around in 1999 when voters approved the TRANS bond proposal. Now the Governor has challenged us to free up even more money for transportation by setting new budget priorities. His plan is better on the bottom line, and far more fair to the taxpayer, than Senator Matsunaka's tax increase. Lets accept the Governor's challenge.

Cancer treatment, drunk driving, and other matters are also before us. The call is crowded, the issues are contentious, and the horror of last Tuesday still haunts us. But I know we can rise to the occasion, Democrats and Republicans alike.

On September 11, a great drama began. We're already into the second act. First it was America attacked. Now it is America unbowed. Still ahead is act three, America victorious -- and then the final act, America renewed. Even mundane legislative chores, if we do them honorably, can help our beloved country toward that goal.

Senate Reconvened.

On motion of Senator Thiebaut and with the unanimous consent of those elected to the Senate, the remarks of President Matsunaka and Minority Leader Andrews were ordered spread upon the pages of the journal.

Senators Isgar and Owen announced that the Governor had been informed that the Senate was organized and ready for business.
