

Other questions about voting from jail

What if I request a ballot but I am released before the ballot arrives?

You may contact your county's office of the Clerk and Recorder to request a replacement ballot.

If you go to the polls to vote, you will be required to vote a provisional ballot because a mail-in ballot will have already been issued to you.

What if I register to vote while I am a pretrial detainee but my eligibility status changes due to a subsequent felony conviction?

If you become ineligible to vote due to a change in your status, do not vote. Any person voting in an election knowing that s/he is not entitled to vote commits a class five felony.

What should I list as my legal address if I was homeless before I was incarcerated?

If you were homeless, you may identify a specific location within a precinct that you consider your home base as your legal street address. Examples include a homeless shelter, a homeless provider, a business address, or any other physical location to which you regularly return and from which you can receive messages.

And finally, don't forget to update your voter registration after you're released from jail.

The jail address will continue to be your mailing address until you update your contact information.

Who is eligible to vote in Colorado?

Many people in Colorado believe that once you have a criminal record you can never vote. This is not true.

- People with a criminal conviction who have served their sentence, including parole if required
- Pretrial detainees in jail
- People currently in jail serving a misdemeanor sentence only
- People currently on probation for either a misdemeanor or felony

OTHER QUESTIONS ABOUT CRIMINAL CONVICTIONS AND VOTING ELIGIBILITY

I have a criminal conviction in my past. Can I vote?

Colorado, you have the right to vote after you have served your sentence. Remember, if you were incarcerated for a felony, any period of parole is considered to be part of your sentence. The day you complete your sentence is the day you become eligible to register and vote.

Will I be notified when I'm eligible to vote?

No. The right to vote is automatically restored, but you will not be notified.

Do I have to prove I have completed my sentence (including parole) in order to register to vote or to vote?

The voting official may ask for proof that you have completed your sentence, including any parole. It's a good idea to bring your sentence or parole discharge document with you when you register to vote.

What if I was convicted for a crime in another state?

Election law varies from state to state, and your right to vote is determined by the state in which you live. If you are a resident of Colorado and if you have completed your sentence, including parole, you can vote.

If I was convicted of a federal crime, do I have the right to vote in a federal election?

It does not matter if you were convicted in a state or federal court. Once you are eligible to vote in Colorado, you are eligible to vote in both state and federal elections.

Do I have to pay off all of my restitution before I can vote?

No. Payment of restitution is not a condition of voting eligibility.

Do I have the right to vote if I am on bond and the criminal case is pending?

Yes. You are eligible to vote if you are on bond as long as you are not convicted and serving a sentence in jail or prison for a felony at the time of the election.

Make sure the copy of any photo ID, such as your driver's license, clearly shows your picture. A dark copy of your photo ID may make it impossible to visually verify your identification.

How to fill out the application

After you receive the application, fill it out in black ink. (Jail personnel should arrange a time/place for you to borrow a black pen.)

- Colorado Legal Residence Street Address is the physical street address you had prior to your incarceration. Do not use a post office box. Mailing Address is the jail's mailing address. The jail's mailing address should include the facility's name, address, city, CO, and zip code. You also need to include your offender number. A telephone number is not required. If you do not have one, leave it blank.
- If you know you will still be in jail through November 4th and want to vote, you will need to request an mail-in (absentee) ballot. Check the box on the form to add your name to the permanent mail-in ballot list. If you do not check this box, the clerk will not know to send you a mail-in ballot.

- The Colorado-Combination Voter Registration and Mail-in Ballot Application requires that you provide a valid Colorado driver's license number or a valid Department of Revenue ID number (state ID) or at least the last four digits of your Social Security number. (If you do not have a Colorado driver's license or Colorado Dept. of Revenue ID number, you can check the box that says you do not have one, but do not check this box if you have either of these IDs. If you know your Social Security number, list at least the last four digits of your number, but do not check the box indicating you don't have a Social Security number if you have one.)

You may need to provide identification when you register by mail. If you are submitting an application to register to vote for the first time, or if you are sending in a ballot and you have not yet submitted an acceptable form of identification to your county's office of the Clerk and Recorder, you will need to provide a copy of an identification document from the following list.

When a copy of one of the following acceptable forms of identification is required and is not submitted with your voter registration application updated Colorado-Combination Voter Registration and Mail-in Ballot Application. You can use this application to update your mailing address and request a mail-in ballot.

You may also update your voter registration by writing a letter to the Clerk and Recorder for the county where you lived prior to your incarceration. See the paragraph at the bottom of this page for the information you need to include in your letter.

You may access the Colorado-Combination Voter Registration and Mail-in Ballot Application one of the following ways:

- Write the Clerk and Recorder for the county of your residence and request the application. (The term residence means the principal or primary home of a person. A residence is a permanent building or part of a building and may include a house, apartment, condominium, room in a house, or mobile home.)
- Write the Elections Division of the Secretary of State and request the application. Their address is Colorado Department of State, Elections Division, 1700 Broadway, Suite 270, Denver, CO 80290. The Elections Division can also send you the address for your county's Clerk and Recorder.

- Some jails have copies of the application form. If this is the case for the jail where you're incarcerated, you can request one from jail personnel.
- The application may also be downloaded from the Secretary of State's website at www.sos.state.co.us. English and Spanish versions are available.

Whether you submit a Colorado-Combination Voter Registration and Mail-in Ballot Application or write a letter to your county's Clerk and Recorder, under Colorado law your mail-in ballot application must contain your printed name, signature, residence address, mailing address* if you wish to receive the ballot by mail, and date of birth. If you do not provide all of this information, you may not receive a mail-in ballot according to the rules established by the Secretary of State.

*The mailing address is the address for the jail where you're incarcerated. Be sure to include your offender number with the address.

2. The Operations Major confirms the inmate's eligibility to vote. An inmate is eligible to vote if s/he is not convicted of or serving a sentence for a felony, is a pretrial detainee, and/or is not currently on parole. If the inmate is eligible, then the Operations Major attaches a letter of eligibility to the inmate's kite.
