

Dems telling Republicans to vote Wednesday, woman says

By Judi Villa, Rocky Mountain News

Published November 4, 2008 at 3:23 p.m.

Updated November 4, 2008 at 3:28 p.m.

AT THE REPUBLICAN PARTY VICTORY OFFICE IN LAKEWOOD -- There's a nasty rumor going around, and Republican party volunteers want it quashed.

No, it's definitely NOT true that Republicans are supposed to vote tomorrow.

Charli Oswald, a Republican volunteer, said campaign workers in Jefferson County and Denver have been told that Democrats are calling Republicans, telling them they're supposed to vote tomorrow because lines are too long today.

Republican volunteers worry that someone will fall for it because "you have people trying to figure out the process," and it can be confusing.

Oswald said voters need to be in line at their polling place by 7 p.m. tonight to cast their ballots.

"Today is the only day to vote," she said.