Re: Testimony for 2015 Off-Highway Vehicle Interim Committee

Memorandum

This memorandum has been prepared and is submitted on behalf of the American Insurance Association (AIA) and its member companies. AIA is the leading property and casualty insurance trade organization, representing more than 325 insurance companies that write more than $127 billion in premiums each year. We appreciate the opportunity to present our concerns for your consideration as you deliberate issues before the interim committee.

AIA requests that the committee consider that off-road vehicles should not be subject to the same auto insurance laws as on-road vehicles operated in normal conditions. Simply put, they are not the equivalent of automobiles and trucks that have a whole array of safety obligations and features associated with their manufacture and operation.

Auto insurers base their premiums in large part on known vehicles that meet known standards of road worthiness for all uses and which operate in a known universe of paved roadways. Off-road vehicles do not meet the same standards of road or crash worthiness, and are often operated in a more dangerous environment that increases the chances of harm to the occupants and others. Such vehicles should not be subject to the same auto insurance laws as well-known vehicles operated in well-known situations.

During testimony before the interim committee on July 20, 2015, the Colorado State Patrol (CSP) provided testimony about safety concerns associated with the operation of off-road vehicles. It is our understanding that the CSP indicated it would be neutral on legislation that contained certain elements, including that the vehicle would be insured. Should the committee consider an insurance requirement in legislation, it would be important to differentiate between an off-road liability coverage from those coverages normally required for an on-road vehicle under our current automobile financial responsibility laws.

Thank you for your consideration.

Very truly yours,

Robert M. Ferm, Esq.
