Summary of Legislation

This bill modifies the Postsecondary Enrollment Options Act to extend concurrent enrollment opportunities to eleventh or twelfth grade students in a private school or a home school. School districts must notify all students residing in the district of the opportunity for post-secondary enrollment.

The bill permits the CDE, school districts, and institutions of higher education to enter into agreements to create courses solely for high school students. If a college offers such courses, the CDE shall reimburse the college, and pay any other amount specified in the agreement to the college.

Eligible students may enroll in 2 or more higher education courses for which he or she will also receive high school credit. If a student enrolls in 2 courses, that student shall be counted in both the district's and the college's student FTE. If the student enrolls in more than 2 courses, only the college will count the student in its FTE.

For any course not specifically created for high school students, a student may enroll at the resident rate of tuition, and the CDE will reimburse the student for the first 2 courses. The department may reimburse the student for additional courses at its discretion. Prior to reimbursing a student for tuition, the CDE shall require that the student and his or her parent or guardian sign a promise to repay the tuition if the student fails to complete the course without the consent of the parent or other administrator of the student's non public school. If the student fails to complete the course without consent the student or the student's parent or guardian must refund the CDE the amount of tuition.

State Expenditures

Beginning in FY 2009-10, this bill will result in total costs of $19.9 million and 5.0 FTE in the Colorado Department of Education. Costs are described below and summarized in Table 1.

Currently 5,153 students (5% of eligible students) take part in concurrent enrollment offered via the Postsecondary Enrollment Options Act; however, these students are reimbursed by the school district in which they are students. Home schooled students who are also enrolled part-time in a public school may participate in the program.

It is estimated that there are 5,344 eleventh and twelfth grade students in non-public schools. If 5 percent of these students take advantage of the bill, an estimated 267 students will enroll and be eligible for reimbursements from the CDE. Since the bill requires that the CDE reimburse all students, including students who are currently reimbursed by school districts, the total students for whom the CDE will provide reimbursements is 5,420. Using an average tuition rate of $900 per course, if each of these students took 2 courses per term, the total reimbursements supplied by the CDE will be $19.5 million (5,420 students * $3,600 = $19,512,000).

Staff is needed at the CDE to monitor written requests for concurrent enrollment, verify that courses will count for high school credit, provide reimbursements, verify successful completion of courses by the eligible students, and collect on promissory notes if students do not pass or fail to complete courses without authorization. The department will also provide information concerning the program on its website and inform all schools and districts in the state of concurrent enrollment options.

School District Impact

The CDE will reimburse all students who take advantage of concurrent enrollment. Under current law, the school district reimburses students using money from school finance. Since the district will not use portions of that revenue for reimbursements, the districts will retain all of the per-pupil funding for these students. The statewide average per-pupil funding in FY 2008-09 is $6,908. If the district retains the funding for the 5,153 public school students, districts will retain $35.6 million; no portion of this amount will be used for concurrent enrollment costs.

State Appropriations

In FY 2009-10, this bill requires a General Fund appropriation of $19,877,690 and 5.0 FTE to the Colorado Department of Education.
