programs that allow Colorado youth to participate in outdoor activities in the state, including but not limited to programs that emphasize the environment and experiential, field-based learning. The executive director of the department of natural resources (executive director) will adopt rules to implement the grant program, including criteria for selecting grant recipients. An advisory council will assist the executive director in reviewing the applications and creating the criteria. The grant program will be funded through gifts, grants, and donations, which will be deposited in the newly created Colorado kids outdoors grant program fund. The executive director will report to certain legislative committees concerning implementation of the grant program, including the amount awarded and the activities that receive funding.

The bill directs the department of education, in consultation with the department of natural resources, to create and the state board of education (state board) to adopt a state plan for environmental education (state plan). The state plan will be designed to strengthen environmental education in the state and provide to educators professional development in environmental education. The department of education and the state board will create and adopt the state plan only if the department receives gifts, grants, and donations to pay the costs of creating and adopting the plan. Any moneys received by the department of education for creating the state plan will be credited to the newly created state environmental education fund.

1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2 SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly
3 hereby finds that:

4 (a) From the arid high plains of the eastern slope, through the 5 stunning grandeur of the Rocky Mountains, to the fruitful river valleys of 6 the western slope and the rocky deserts of the northwest and southwest 7 corners of the state, Colorado boasts an amazing array of ecosystems and 8 stunning, undeveloped, natural areas;

9 (b) Too many of the youth who grow up in Colorado lack 10 opportunities to experience the natural areas of the state and spend most 11 of their time in highly developed urban areas with little access to the open 12 spaces and natural environments for which Colorado is famous;

1 (c) Providing Colorado's youth with quality opportunities to 2 directly experience the natural areas of Colorado can improve their 3 overall academic performance, raise their self-esteem, and increase their 4 sense of personal responsibility and community involvement;

5 (d) Greater access to outdoor activities in a natural environment
6 can also promote healthy habits and increased levels of activity and can 7 reduce childhood obesity and the symptoms of attention deficit
8 hyperactivity disorder;

9 (e) Promoting sportsmen's activities and recreations, including 10 hunting and fishing, creates opportunities for youth to interact with their 11 parents, provides circumstances in which to develop positive social and 12 behavioral traits, and expands youths' understanding of the important role 13 sportsmen play in wildlife and habitat conservation;

14 (f) Many youth lack an understanding of the opportunities that are 15 unique to persons in Colorado for developing careers and life skills 16 relating to natural resources and the science, agricultural, and recreational 17 outdoor industries that operate in the state; and

18 (g) Greater understanding of and engagement with the 19 environment can give students a greater sense of their responsibility as 20 future stewards of the environment and better prepare them to address the 21 challenges and opportunities of making decision that impact the health of 22 the environment, the success of Colorado's communities, and the vitality 23 of the state's economy.

24 (2) The general assembly concludes, therefore, that enacting the 25 Colorado kids outdoors grant program and directing the department of 26 education to adopt a state plan for environmental education is necessary 27 in order to:

1 (a) Help ensure greater coordination and cooperation among state
2 agencies and private organizations in providing to Colorado's youth
3 high-quality experiences in Colorado's vast range of natural environments
4 and a greater understanding of and appreciation for the complex 5 ecosystems of the state; and

6 (b) Improve statewide access to environmental education and raise 7 awareness for the need for and benefits of outdoor experiences as part of 8 the broad scope of public education provided by the state.
