- ! person is alleged to have been a victim;
- ! Instances in which the person's statement describes all or part of any of certain sexual offenses performed with, by, on, or in the presence of the person in a criminal or civil proceeding in which a person is charged with committing a sexual assault, unlawful sexual contact, or sexual assault on a client by a psychotherapist;
- ! Instances in which the person's statement describes any act of child abuse in any criminal, delinquency, or civil proceeding in which a child is alleged to be a victim of child abuse or alleged to be neglected or dependent; and
- ! Instances in which the person's statement describes all or part of an offense involving homicide or a related offense or describing an act of domestic violence in any criminal, delinquency, or civil proceeding in which a child is alleged to be a victim of an offense involving homicide or a related offense or a victim of an act of domestic violence.

The new hearsay exception shall apply only if:

- ! The court finds in a hearing conducted outside the presence of the jury that the time, content, and circumstances of the statement provide sufficient safeguards of reliability; and
- ! The person either testifies at the proceedings or is unavailable as a witness and there is corroborative evidence of the act that is the subject of the statement.

If such a statement is admitted, the court shall instruct the jury in the final written instructions that during the proceeding the jury heard evidence repeating an out-of-court statement by a person with a developmental disability, that it is for the jury to determine the weight and credit to be given the statement, and that, in making the determination, the jury shall consider the nature of the statement, the circumstances under which the statement was made, and any other relevant factor.
