1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2 SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly
3 hereby finds and declares:

4 (a) Vaccines are considered one of the greatest public health
5 achievements of the twentieth century, and save an estimated three 6 million children's lives every year;

7 (b) Vaccines are cost-effective, and for every dollar we spend 8 immunizing a child up to six years of age, more than $10 is saved in 9 direct and indirect costs;

10 (c) High rates of immunization coverage are necessary to prevent 11 the spread of vaccine-preventable diseases;

12 (d) Children who are not vaccinated are twenty-two to 13 twenty-eight times more likely to get pertussis (whooping cough) than 14 their immunized peers, and with Colorado pertussis cases at epidemic 15 levels, high exemption rates can increase the risk of pertussis and other 16 vaccine-preventable diseases within Colorado schools and communities;

17 (e) Personal belief exemptions are the primary reason for

1 exemption from recommended vaccines and account for over ninety
2 percent of all exemptions for Colorado kindergartners from 2003-2012;

3 (f) Colorado has one of the highest rates of personal belief
4 exemption for immunizations in the United States, which translates to 5 nearly three thousand kindergartners entering school unvaccinated against 6 one or more vaccine-preventable diseases each year;

7 (g) States with permissive or easy procedures for claiming 8 personal belief exemptions have higher rates of vaccine-preventable 9 diseases; states with policies that make it easy to exempt children from 10 immunization were associated with a ninety percent higher incidence of 11 whooping cough in 2011; ==

12 (h) A parent's decision to refuse vaccination for their child carries 13 risk for their child and the community at large and, therefore, it is critical 14 that Colorado develop a policy that ensures careful consideration of the 15 research about vaccine benefits and risks; and

16 (i) Vaccination does carry some risk for the child receiving the 17 vaccination, and parents should weigh the benefits and risks before 18 choosing to have their child vaccinated.

7 follows:
