department of education (department). The bill clarifies and updates the definitions of "on-line program" and "on-line school" and clarifies the requirements for documenting student attendance and participation in an on-line program or on-line school. The bill also removes the ability of a group of school districts that have not formed a board of cooperative services to authorize an on-line program or an on-line school.

Under current law, when a student transfers into or out of an on-line school, the transferring school must transmit the student records to the receiving school within 30 days. The bill reduces the time for transmitting student records to 14 days.

Under current law, an on-line school that enrolls students from more than one school district (multi-district on-line school) must be certified by the state board of education (state board). The bill removes the state board's authority to accept applications to certify multi-district on-line schools beginning July 1, 2015, and replaces it with the authority to certify authorizers to create or oversee multi-district on-line schools.

By July 1, 2014, the commissioner of education (commissioner) must convene a task force of persons with expertise in on-line education to recommend to the state board quality standards for authorizers. By July 1, 2015, the state board must adopt quality standards for authorizers and rules for certifying authorizers. An authorizer must be certified to create or oversee a multi-district on-line school.

Beginning July 1, 2015, authorizers of existing multi-district on-line schools must apply for certification. An authorizer that is overseeing a multi-district on-line school as of July 1, 2015, must apply for certification by October 1, 2015. If the authorizer is initially denied certification, it may reapply after 6 months. If the state board again denies certification, the authorizer may not reapply for 2 years.

If a school district, a board of cooperative services, or the institute that is not an authorizer as of July 1, 2015, chooses to authorize a multi-district on-line school, it must first obtain certification. The certification will expire within one year if the authorizer does not authorize a multi-district on-line school.

Certification is valid for 5 years and may be renewed. The state board may deny or refuse to renew an authorizer's certification if the authorizer does not meet the quality standards for authorizers. If an authorizer's certification is denied or not renewed, the authorizer may request from the department intensive, interactive technical support to cure the defect that resulted in denial or nonrenewal. If an authorizer does not obtain or loses certification, each multi-district on-line school that the authorizer oversees must apply for authorization from a new authorizer. If a single-district or a multi-district on-line school changes authorizers, the department must consider the consecutive years during which it operates under a priority improvement or turnaround plan immediately preceding the change in authorizers in determining whether the on-line school is subject to restructuring.

By July 1, 2014, the commissioner must convene a group of experts to assist the department in designing pilot programs to explore initiatives to address specified issues in providing on-line education. The department must complete the pilot program designs and issue requests for proposals by October 2014, and each pilot program must begin operating in the 2015-16 school year. An authorizer that participates in a pilot program must continue to comply with all statutes and rules while operating the pilot program and must submit data concerning the pilot program to the department. The department must annually submit to the state board, the governor, and the education committees a summary of the pilot programs. The department may accept and expend gifts, grants, and donations to offset the costs incurred in implementing the pilot programs and is not required to implement the provisions concerning pilot programs unless it receives sufficient funding.
