1 WHEREAS, The histories of the Colorado Centennial Farms and 2 those individuals who have worked in the agricultural industry are an 3 intrinsic part of the cultural tapestry of this state; and

4 WHEREAS, Many of the farms and ranches located across 5 Colorado were first homesteaded by filing a claim pursuant to the federal

7 which resulted in the transfer of the deed to the new owner, while other 8 properties were purchased outright; and

9 WHEREAS, Regardless of the method of acquisition, the 10 transaction did not guarantee success for the farmers and ranchers; their 11 success had to be secured through dedication and hard work; and

12 WHEREAS, The Ortega Farm in San Luis, established in 1851, is 13 Colorado's oldest Centennial Farm; and

14 WHEREAS, The majority of farms and ranches designated as 15 Colorado Centennial Farms were established between 1880 and 1895; and

16 WHEREAS, Weld County has more than 60 designated Centennial 17 Farms – the most in Colorado; and

18 WHEREAS, More than 200 Centennial Farms have received the 19 Historic Structures Award; and

20 WHEREAS, Colorado farmers and ranchers understand that 21 hardships are part of the agricultural lifestyle, but they hope future

23 WHEREAS, Many of these farmers and ranchers struggle to 24 survive in present times due to an unstable economy; and

25 WHEREAS, Farmers and ranchers faced with the uncertainty of 26 the current economy must overcome adversity by adopting a more urban 27 lifestyle, often requiring them to work multiple jobs; and

28 WHEREAS, Urbanization and commercialization threaten the 29 existence of Colorado Centennial Farms; and

30 WHEREAS, While centennial farmers and ranchers continually

1 work to keep their operations up-to-date, they must also attempt to 2 preserve their century-old traditions; and

3 WHEREAS, Many Colorado Centennial Farms are working 4 toward conservation efforts by utilizing environmentally conscious 5 farming and ranching methods to ensure the vitality of cultivated land in 6 Colorado; and

7 WHEREAS, Today, 97% of all farms in the United States are 8 family-owned, and every year each American farmer produces enough 9 food for nearly 155 people in the United States and abroad; and 11 among the state's most important economic drivers, generating more than 12 $40 billion in economic activity annually and supporting more than 13 170,000 jobs; and

14 WHEREAS, Colorado Centennial Farms help feed the nation, 15 support the state economy, participate in conservation programs that 16 prevent soil erosion, improve air and water quality, enhance wildlife 17 habitat, and play a major role in providing feedstock for the production 18 of renewable fuels; and

19 WHEREAS, The Colorado Centennial Farms program recognizes 20 how vital these properties are to the overall economic and environmental
